INTRODUCTION

The David Burford Papers, 1810-1915, are centered around David Burford (1791-1864), army officer, businessman and state legislator from Smith County, Tennessee. The David Burford Papers were placed on deposit by Judge G. W. Allen, Dixon Springs, Tennessee. The collection occupies 1.26 linear feet of shelf space, and numbers approximately 450 items.

Single photocopies of unpublished writings in the David Burford Papers may be made for purposes of scholarly research.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The David Burford Papers, containing 450 items, span the period 1810-1915, although the bulk is largely concentrated in the years 1814-1840. The collection is composed of accounts, correspondence, court records, election records, genealogical data, horse records, land records, legal documents, lists, military records, passes, slave records and several miscellaneous items.

Over one half of the collection consists of correspondence addressed to David Burford while he and Colonel Robert Allen were engaged in a mercantile business in Carthage, Tennessee. Most of these letters were of a business nature and concerned payments on account, acceptance of bank drafts for collection and payment, selling of tobacco through various mercantile firms in New Orleans and other financial transactions. Following the financial panic of 1819 the contents of these business letters reflected the general anxiety in business circles. Several correspondents from New Orleans decried the general state of business including the depressed market for agricultural products, particularly tobacco, the inability to procure United States bank notes to remit for drafts left for collection, business failures in New York City, the dull slave market, and many bank failures in Baltimore.

After the War of 1812 Burford held the rank of Major in the Tennessee State Militia. While serving in this military capacity he kept in contact with correspondence to district Congressmen on such military matters as pension claims, claims for militia soldiers pay, widow's claims, enrollment of volunteers in the state militia and veterans' claims for property lost in the Seminole War.

As a representative of Smith and Sumner Counties in the Tennessee General Assembly during 1829-1835, Burford received letters from constituents seeking appointments to various state government positions, expressions of opinion upon the issue of recharting the United States Bank, the Democratic primary contest between John Eaton and Felix Grundy in 1832, and other political matters.

Probably the single most important letter in the Burford collection is a typed copy of a letter by Andrew Jackson to David Burford, dated July 28, 1831, concerning Jackson's reorganization of his Cabinet and his controversy with John C. Calhoun in regard to Jackson's conduct in Florida during the Seminole War [see Box 2, Folder 4].

Among the military records are annual returns for the 35th Regiment, Tennessee Militia in 1816 and for the 48th Regiment, Tennessee Militia in 1810. Also included are elections of officers in Smith County for the 15th, 16th 41st and 59th Regiments of the Tennessee Militia for the years 1826-1828.

Those interested in slave records will find in the Burford Papers bills of sale for various years in the period 1821-1838. In addition, there are several references to slaves in some of the letters [see Name Index for citings in individual letters].
